Wonders of the Wireless

Are you a patron of the radiophone, and have you enjoyed the news and music which the antennae overhead catches every evening for your benefit and pleasure? Some evenings the musical programs caught are highly entertaining, and one wonders at times where it all comes from, as you apparently jump from place to place in response to the slightest touch of the operator's fingers. The service installed a few months ago at the Stony Plain Garage has been the source of much pleasure to those in town who otherwise could have found the evenings rather dull. This was easily proven to be the case on Friday evening last, when the big hockey game was on in the City. Quite a few of those who could make the trip were in the City to see the game, but a much larger number chose to remain here, and benefit by the splendid service provided by Mr. John H. Miller. The details of the play, as received, were spoken by the operator to those in the room, and thru this it seemed easy to visualize the real play 25 miles away. No charge has been made at any time for the use of the radio phone, and those who have benefited by it owe that enterprising and public-spirited citizen, Mr. John Miller, a debt of gratitude for this.

Farmers With Faith In The West Will Ultimately Share In Future Prosperity

An eastern newspaper intimates that the dependent farmers have had their inning and that it would be well now to hear a little from "the hopeful farmers." The point is well taken. When men have a grievance they are inclined to air it, since only by airing it can they hope to secure the removal of the underlying cause. When they have no grievance and are content with the way things are going, they seldom make any noise about it. As a result, we hear a good deal more from those who are dissatisfied with conditions than from those who are satisfied with them; a good deal more from the farmers with grievances, alleged or real, than from the farmers who are "sawing wood" and saying nothing. And this fact often leads to an exaggerated estimate of the number and importance of the most ardent culture group and of the seriousness of its complaint, says the Regina Leader.

There are general conditions and in parts local conditions weighing heavily on agriculture in Canada and especially in Western Canada today, which justify a good deal of the noise the farmers are making; and as long as they confine their complaints to nationally controllable conditions, they are justified in making all the noise they can. What they are not justified in doing is attempting to secure relief from uncontrollable conditions by representing that unless they get it the whole country is going to the dogs. The number of those who carry their protest that far is small, but unfortunately they are vociferous and their propaganda is doing the country no good in the eyes of potential immigrants from other countries.

Although comparatively silent, there are plenty of "hopeful farmers" in the west today, who know from experience that the conditions through which the farming industry is passing are only temporary; that similar conditions have existed in the past and have been successfully gone through. They are not making any noise because they do not see anything to make a noise about. They are not preaching blue ruin because they know that if the people on the land stick to it, as the wise ones have, they will be able to stand through hard times and good, they are going to come out all right in the end. Within the past weeks several expressions of this conviction have been heard from men who know what they are talking about. At the Calgary conference on farmers' debts Mr. E. J. Cream, Commissioner of Southern Alberta Drought Area Relief Act, who has been in Alberta for over thirty years, while admitting the agricultural situation in the province at this time is serious, stated emphatically that it is by no means hopeless. The farmers have gone through just as much trouble in the past, according to Mr. Cream, and probably will go through just as much in the future. After residing in the province for three decades he has "greater confidence in its future than ever before."

Saskatchewan and Manitoba have their "hopeful farmers," as well as Alberta. The trouble is that we hear all too little from them. They are too busy turning their hopes into reality, to waste time and breath on their grievances. So the field of oratory is left to be tilted largely by the grievance-monger and the dependent. Which is a pity.

TELLS HOW CATARRH IS DESTROYED QUICKLY

Catarrh sufferers, meaning those with colds, sore throat, bronchial trouble, etc., can all be fixed up right at home by inhaling "Catarrhose." In using Catarrhose you don't take medicine into the stomach—you just breathe a healing piney vapor direct to the lungs and air passages. The purest balsams and the greatest antiseptic are thus sent to every spot where catarrhal trouble exists—germs are killed, foul secretions are destroyed, nature is given a chance and the disease ends quickly. Colds and throat troubles can't last if the pure healing vapor of Catarrhose is breathed—sneezing, and coughing cease at once because irritation is removed. Bronchitis, irritation and weakness in the throat soon disappear. Use Catarrhose whether young or old. Two months treatment $1.50, small size 50c, dealers everywhere. The Catarrhose Co., Montreal.

Russia's Population

Twenty Million Less

Nation Loses Heavily Through War, Famine and Disease

If there had been no war, Russia would probably have about twenty million more people today. So estimates the Health Section of the League of Nations.

The total population of Russia is at least nine millions less than in 1914, whereas, at the normal rate of increase, it should have been twelve million more.

The loss of the nine millions is accounted for as follows: Emigration, 2,000,000; losses in the war, 2,500,000; losses in civil war, 1,000,000; excess mortality, due to epidemics, 3,500,000.

To these losses, moreover, have to be added the deaths caused by the recent famine which was, to a certain extent at least, due to the war.

Surely such terrible facts must have taught even the present rulers of Russia the folly and stupidity of war.

Cost Of Grain Production

Interesting Figures Obtained From Experimental Farm at Ogma

Some interesting figures relative to the cost of production of grain have been presented by the Director of the Dominion Experimental Farm at Ogma, Saskatchewan. The climatic conditions in that part of Saskatchewan were very favorable during the year of 1922 as a rainfall much heavier than usual gave splendid moisture all through the summer months. The seeding season began the middle of May. One and one-half bushels of wheat, two bushels of oats, fourteen pounds per acre of rye grass and fifteen pounds per acre of sweet clover. Harvest commenced August 25th.

	Yield Per Acre	Days Maturing	Actual Cost	Production
3 years rotation with wheat—
Fodder Corn .....	3 2-5 tons	107	$5.32
Marquis Wheat, 2nd Crop ...	24 bus.	96	.46
Marquis Wheat, 3rd Crop ...	32 bus.	96	.47
4 years rotation with wheat and western rye—
Marquis wheat on fallow seeded with rye grass .....	28 bus.	94	.62
Fallow .....			6.63
Hay .....	3 1/100		3.32
Demonstration test plots—
Kubanka Wheat .....	26 bus.	110	.53

Kubanka and Early Red Fife wheat were sown on this farm for a comparison with Marquis. All three will be noted from the above table that Marquis made the best showing.

BRITISH TEACHERS ARRIVE AT ST. JOHN

Thirty-three school teachers from England arrived at St. John recently on board the Canadian Pacific steamer "Montclair," under the charge of Rev. P. J. Andrews, formerly of Hambleton, Sask. They are all fully trained and have come to help the cause of rural education in the West, and to help Canadianize new arrivals into this country.

Would Urge Development Of Canada's Wheat Areas To Help Pay British Debt

Closed Season For Halibut

Treaty Between U.S. and Canada Becomes Effective

Under the terms of a treaty between Canada and the United States, recently signed for Canada by Hon. Ernest Lapointe, Minister of Marine and Fisheries, and for the United States by Hon. Charles Hughes, Secretary of State, a closed season each year from November 16th to February 15th in the North Pacific Ocean will be effective. By the terms of the treaty penalties will be provided for the operation of fishing vessels by citizens of the two countries in violation of the closed season provision.

The closed season will continue, it is provided, until the United States or Canadian authorities modify or suspend it by joint agreement, or until the convention is abrogated, by notice of either country. It is provided that notice of abrogation can be given after the closed season is in force at least five years. The convention also provides for the appointment of a commission of four members, two representing the United States and two the Canadian Government, to investigate the halibut fishery in the North Pacific and make recommendations for preservation and development of the industry. The halibut fishery industry which is rapidly being depleted it was said, will be given prolonged life as a result.

Corns, Warts, Bunions, Painlessly Removed

Don't limp any longer, don't suffer another hour from corns. The oldest remedy and the best, the one that for fifty years has proved a true success, will lift you from your corns in a hurry. Putnam's Painless Corn and Wart Extractor is the one remedy to use. Refuse a substitute, 25c everywhere.

Sir George Leonard Johnston, a member of the Council of the London Chamber of Commerce and the British Empire League, at a meeting in London suggested that Great Britain should build up in Canada a reserve toward the payment of the debt to the United States. He said the Canadian and United States dollars were not likely to vary seriously in value, and therefore any fund which the British Government could build up in the Dominion would be comparatively free from exchange fluctuations.

Canada was capable of being developed at a much more rapid rate than the present capital and man-power at its disposal could develop it. Sir George said that if the British Government could now borrow money at a lower rate than it had been able to do for a good many years. If it could obtain some of the lands from Canada it could utilize say, £100,000,000 in developing wheat areas and possibly certain industries in the Dominion.

This work, in conjunction with some large emigration scheme of selected unemployed persons, should develop in Canada a reproductive asset that would, after a while, annually supply large sums of money toward Britain's payment to the United States, in Sir George's opinion, and, in addition, every bushel of wheat bought from Canada, instead of from the United States, would help to keep the exchange better in the latter country.

Canada under this scheme would grow stronger, Sir George Johnston said, and Great Britain should thereby be able to build up an asset that would reduce the burden of the American debt. His own experience in Canada, he said, convinced him that any such scheme to be successful would have to be planned and brought forward by Canadians themselves, to meet the British views on the proposed development.

Too Many Calves Marketed

Ruthless Slaughter of Calves a Matter of Concern

Last year was probably a record year for calf selling, at least more calves appeared on the market than in any previous year. This fact suggests an unwise drain upon our resources. The Dominion Livestock Commissioner gives a good counsel in Pamphlet No. 20 of the Ottawa Department of Agriculture. Although offered in war time it is of equal value now. A hundred pound calf, the commissioner points out, is a thousand pound steer in embryo. Kill the calf and you get a fifty or sixty pound delicacy; kill the steer and you provide five or six hundred pounds of substantial beef. The country cannot view without serious concern the ruthless slaughter of beef calves. The marketing of dairy-bred calves is not, however, an unwise practice, because the beef one gets from a steer of dairy type is expensive, produced and of less value per pound. It is the beef type of calf that should be saved and developed into a feeder for export or a finished bullock for either the home or export market. Statistics indicate pretty clearly that an immense dividend to the country could be salvaged by returning to the farm large drafts of carefully selected calves from the numbers that continue regularly to find their way to the big central market.

There was no time to waste in loitering for at any moment his Lewis might arrive and give an alarm which would summon reinforcements from amongst Moran's following. Wade swung open the door and they looked out cautiously. No sign of anyone in sight, and a couple of minutes later the two men were mounted and on their way out of town.

"By the great horned toad!" Santry exclaimed, as they left the lights of Crawling Water behind them. "It sure feels good to be out of that there board-house. It wasn't our fault, Gordon, and say, about this here shootin'—"

"I know all about that, Bill," Wade interposed. "The boys told me they're waiting for us at the big pine. But your arrest, that's what I want to hear about."

"Well, it was this-a-way," the old man explained. "They sneaked up on the house in the dark and got the drop on us. Right here I rise to remark that never no more will I separate myself from my six-shooter. Moran's one good man has got himself killed just because his gun wasn't where it oughter be when he needed it. Of course, we put up the best scrap we could, but we didn't have no chance, Gordon. The first thing I knew while I was tussling with one feller, somebody fetched me a rap on the head with a pistolbutt, and I went down for the count. Any of the boys shot up?"

Wade described the appearance of the ranch house on the previous night, and Santry swore right manfully. "What's on the cards now," he demanded. "How much longer are we goin' to stand for?"

"No longer," Wade declared crisply. "That's why the boys are waiting for us at the pine. We're going to run Moran and his gang off the ranch as soon as we can get there, and then we're going to run them out of the country."

"Whoop-e-e-e-e!" The old plainsman yelped of gratification, and he brought his hand down on Wade's back with a force which made him stagger twice. "By the great horned toad, that's talkin'! That's the finest news I've heard since the boys told me to call him Bill, for short. Whoop-e-e-e-e!"

BEFORE MY BABY CAME

I Was Greatly Benefited by Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Sydenham, Ont.—"I took your medicine before my baby was born, and it was a great help to me as I was very poorly until I had started to take it. I felt as though I was tired out all the time and would have weak, faint spells. My nerves would better me until I could get little rest, night or day. I was told by a friend to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and I only took a few bottles and it helped me wonderfully. I would recommend it to any woman. I am doing what I can to recommend this good medicine. I will lend that little book you sent me to any one I can help. You can with the greatest of pleasure use my name in regard to the Vegetable Compound if it will help others take it."—Mrs. HARRY MILLER GAN, Sydenham, Ont.

It is remarkable how many cases have been reported similar to this one. Many women are poorly at such times and get into a weakened, run-down condition, when it is essential to the mother, as well as the child, that her strength be kept up.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is an excellent tonic for the mother at this time. It is prepared from medicinal roots and herbs, and does not contain any harmful drugs. It may be taken in safety by the nursing mother.

W. N. U. 1464.

Wade's warning to keep still was lost on the wind, for Santry stuck his spurs into his horse's flanks and charged along the trail like an old time knight. With a grin smite his employer put on speed and followed him.

CHAPTER IX.

The Battle at the Ranch

When Wade and Santry approached the big pine, the waiting men came out from its shadow and rode forward, with the borrowed rifles across their saddles.

"All right, boys!" the rancher asked, taking Trowbridge's new rifle, a beautiful weapon, which Lawson handed to him.

"All right, sir," answered Tim Sullivan, as he took the "dr" in estimation of his befuddled condition the night before, while each man gave Santry a silent handshake to welcome him home.

Grimly, silently, then, save for the clanking of the horses' hoofs against the loose stones, and an occasional muttered imprecation as a rider lurched in his saddle, the seven men rode rapidly toward the mountains. In numbers, their party was about even with the enemy, and Wade meant that the advantage of surprise, if possible, should rest with him in order to offset such advantage as Moran might find in the shelter of the house.

Still, however that might be, each man realized that the die had been cast and that the fight, once begun, would go to a finish.

"I only hope," Santry remarked, as a steep grade forced them to lessen their speed, "I can get my two hands on that cursed tin-horn, Moran. Him and me has a misunderstanding to settle, for sure."

"You leave him to me, Bill," Wade spoke vindictively. "It's my meat." "Well, since you ask it, I'll try, boy, but there's goin' to be some fightin' sure as taxes, and when I get to fightin' I'm liable to go plumb, hog wild. Say, I hope you don't get into no trouble over this here jail business o' mine. That 'ud make me feel bad."

"We'll not worry about that now, Bill."

"That's right. Don't worry till you have to, and then shoot instead. That's been my motto all my born days, and it ain't no durn bad philosophy at that. I wonder—the old man chuckled to himself—"I wonder if the sheriff at up most of that there gas before that let him loose."

Wade laughed out loud, and as though responsive an owl hooted somewhere e'en the timber to their right.

"There's a durned old hoot owl," growled Santry. "I never like to hear them things—they most always mean bad luck."

He rode to the head of the little column, and the rest of the way to the ranch was passed in ominous silence. When they finally arrived at the edge of the clearing and cautiously dismounted, everything seemed from the exterior, at least, as it should be. The night before far gone, the lights were out, and there was no sign of life about the place. Wade wondered if the posse had gone.

"There ain't no use in speculatin'," declared Santry. "They may be asleep, and they may be layin' for us there in the dark. This will take a rise out of 'em anyhow."

At sight of the old fellow, pistol in hand, Wade called to him to wait, but as he spoke Santry fired two quick shots into the air.

"There was an immediate commotion in the ranch house. A man inside was heard to curse loudly, while another showed his face for an instant where the moonlight fell across a window. He hastily ducked out of sight. However, when a life bullet splintered the glass just above his head. Presently a gun cracked inside the house and a splash on a rock behind the attackers told them where the shot had struck.

"Whoop-e-e-e-e!" Santry yelled, discharging the four remaining shots in his revolver at the window. "We've got 'em, gussies! They don't know how many we are."

They were probably asleep," said Wade a bit sharply. "We've got 'em sneaked in and captured the whole crowd without firing a shot. That's what I meant to do before you cut loose."

Santry shook his grizzled head as he loaded his revolver.

"Well, now, that would have been just a mite risky, boy. The way things stand we've still got the advantage."

"He broke off to take a snap-shot at a man who showed himself at the window for an instant in an effort to get a glimpse of the attacking force. "One!" muttered the old plainsman himself.

By this time Wade had thrown himself down on his stomach behind a bowlder to Santry's left and was shooting methodically at the door of the house, directly in front of him. He knew that door. It was built of inch lumber and was so located that a bullet, after passing through it, would rake the interior of the cabin from end to end. The only way the inmates could keep out of the line of his fire was by hugging the walls on either side, where they would be partially exposed to the leaden hail which Santry and the panchers were directing at the windows.

There was a grim, baleful look on the young man's usually pleasant face, and his eyes held a pitiless gleam. He was shooting straight, shooting to kill, and taking a fierce delight in the act. The blood lust was upon him, that primal, instinctive desire for combat in a righteous cause that lies hidden at the very bottom of every strong man's nature. And there came to his mind no possible question of the righteous nature of his cause. He was fighting to regain possession of his own home from the marauders who had invaded it. His enemies had crowded him to the wall, and now they were paying the penalty.

Wade varied the lever of his Winchester as though he had no other business in life. A streak of yellow mingled with a bloody trickle from a bullet scratch on his cheek gave his set features a fairly ferocious expression.

Santry glancing toward him, chuckled again, but without mirth. "The boys' woke up at last," he muttered, and ordered his men to draw him to it, dura 'em. I knew ain't well that this law 'n' order stunt a rock near him, 'Wade."

The latter exclamation was caused by a bullet which ricocheted from a rock near him, and scattered a quantity of fine particles into his face.

"Whoop-e-e-e-e!" he howled a moment later. "We got 'em gone. It's a cinch they can't stand this pace for more'n a week."

Indeed, it was a marvel that the defenders kept on fighting as long as they did. Already the door, beneath Wade's machine-like shooting, had been completely riddled; the windows were almost bare of glass; and great splinters of wood had been torn from the log walls by the heavy rifle bullets on their way through to the interior. Soon the door sagged and crashed inward, and into the smoldering hole thus made Wade continued to empty his rifle.

At last, the fire of those within slackened and temporarily ceased. Did this mean surrender? Wade asked himself and ordered his men to stop shooting and await developments. For some moments all was still, and the advisability of rushing the house was being discussed when all at once the fire of the defenders began again. This time, however, there was something very odd about it. There was a loud banging of exploding cartridges, but only a few shots whistled around the heads of the cattlemen. Nevertheless, Wade told his men to resume shooting, and once more settled down to his own task.

"What'n hell they try'n to do?" Santry demanded. "Sound like a Fourth o' July barbecue to me."

"I don't know," Wade answered, charging the magazine of his rifle, "but whatever it is they'll have to stop mighty soon."

Then gradually, but none the less certainly, the fire from within slackened until all was still. This seemed more like a visitation of death, and again Wade ordered his men to stop shooting. They obeyed orders and lay still, keenly watching the house.

"Do you surrender?" Wade shouted, but there was no reply.

Santry sprang to his feet. "By the great horned toad!" he cried. "I'm a goat in there! Anybody that wants to come along is welcome."

Not a man in the party would be dared in that way, so, taking advantage of such cover as offered, they advanced upon the cabin, stealthily at first and then more rapidly, as they met with no resistance—no sign whatever of life. A final rush carried them through the doorway into the house, where they expected to find a sham.

Wade struck a light, and faced about with a start as a low groan came from a corner of the back room. A man lay at full length on the floor, tied hand and foot and gagged. It was Ed Nelson, one of the Double Arrow hands who had been surprised and captured by the posse, and a little farther away in the shadow against the wall his two companions lay in a like condition. With his knife Wade was cutting them loose, and glancing about in a puzzled search for the wounded men he expected to find in the house, when Santry shouted something from the kitchen.

Germany Has New Plan To Make Settlement Of Reparations Question

London.—Germany is about to make a declaration that she is willing and ready to produce a plan for final settlement of the reparations question, provided she can rely on the plan receiving the attention and consideration of the allied governments, says the Daily Telegraph's diplomatic correspondent, upon whose information the Daily Telegraph, in an editorial, says the fullest reliance may be placed.

According to the correspondent, the plan, which involves a material guarantee by the German industrialists, will not be disclosed until the German Government is assured that it will not be brushed aside without serious examination, as happened to Karl Bergmann's proposals in London in December, and in Paris in January. Unofficial or semi-official envoys from Berlin, says the correspondent, recently caused inquiries to be made of the British Cabinet whether it would not take the lead by suggesting that a concrete offer from Germany would be welcomed in London, but that the British statesmen were reluctant to commit themselves.

This attitude of reserve, says the writer, disappointed not only the German Government, but other governments who had been looking to Great Britain for a lead. The correspondent denies that Germany is fully prepared to accept far-reaching measures of international control of her finances, and to participate in some international guarantee to France respecting France's treaty frontiers.

B.C. Fears Labor Shortage

Will Not Be Able to Supply Men for Work on Prairies

Victoria.—British Columbia industry, between now and the end of April, will require every able-bodied man. This is the summary of conditions by J. D. McEwen, Deputy Minister of Labor.

Because of these conditions, it is understood the Government will not take any steps this spring to encourage men to go to the prairies. No extra low transportation rates, as were in vogue last year, will be sought or given.

In fact, prospects for industry here are so bright that not only will all the surplus labor be taken up, but there may develop by summer a serious shortage. At present, unemployment is getting near the vanishing point.

The prairie provinces have asked British Columbia for 1,500 men for the seeding and growing season, but now this province has reached the conclusion that it cannot spare even that number.

Canadian Fish For France

B.C. Cannerymen to Send Exhibit Accompanied by Expert Chiefs

Montreal.—Canadian fish cannerymen have decided to storm French prejudice into abandoning their pet dish of frogs' legs in favor of Canadian salmon.

Announcement to this effect was made when a contract was signed by a group of British Columbia cannerymen to send an exhibit to France as a part of the Canadian exhibition train, which is to tour France early this summer. Not only will the fish be exhibited according to the agreement, but a party of expert chefs will accompany the exhibit and prepare their fishy triumphs for distribution along the route.

Germany Appeals to Britain

Berlin.—Foreign intervention to obtain the release of Lord Major Zimmernann of Basel, whom the French are holding as a hostage, is sought in a telegram from the German democratic party to the English League of Nations union.

CORNS

Lift Off with Fingers

Doesn't hurt a bit! Drop a little "Freezone" on an aching corn, instantly that corn stops hurting, then shortly you lift it right off with fingers. Truly!

Your druggist sells a tiny bottle of "Freezone" for a few cents, sufficient to remove every hard corn, soft corn, blisters between the toes, and the calluses, without soreness or irritation.

Postpone Round-World Flight

Frenchmen Expect to Be Able to Start April 1

Paris.—The two-year around the world flight by five French aviators which was to have begun March 15, has been postponed until April 1 because of passport difficulties, especially in Persia and India.

The present plan is for the flight to begin at Nice whence the machines will fly eastward crossing Asia by way of India to Japan, thence to Nome, Alaska, then down the Pacific Coast to America to Southern Chile over the Andes to Argentina with the jump across the Atlantic taken from Pernambuco, Brazil, to Dakar, the flight thence proceeding northward to Nice.

Less U.S. Coal Imported

Canada Brought Fuel From Great Britain in 1922

Ottawa.—Anthracite coal imported into Canada from the United States during the year 1922 amounted to 2,511,249 short tons, as compared with 4,567,370 short tons in 1921, and 4,192,941 in 1920. Bituminous coal from the United States during the year amounted to 10,924,615 tons compared with 13,154,250 in 1921 and 15,902,632 in 1920.

For the first time in many years coal was imported from Great Britain during the last six months of the year 1922, about 817,000 tons being received. Of this, 639,000 tons was bituminous, while 178,000 tons was anthracite.

Australia Gets Most British Settlers London.—Replying to a question in the House of Commons as to how many emigrants left the British Isles for Australia, New Zealand and Canada in January last, Viscount Wolmer gave the following figures: Australia, 4,242; New Zealand, 678; Canada, 1,313.

Will Make No Change In Present Liquor Law In Saskatchewan

Ottawa.—There will be no change for the present in the Saskatchewan Government's liquor policy, it was announced by Hon. J. A. Cross, Attorney-General, in the Saskatchewan Assembly in the debate on the resolution to refer the estimates to committee of supply.

The Government will not comply with the Moderation League petition signed by 65,975 residents of the province asking for government control and sale of liquor for beverage purposes and the retail sale of beer. Neither is there any intention to submit the question to a referendum at the present time, as suggested by some of the members of the league at a recent conference with the Government.

"We have already had two plebiscites and still the situation is said to be satisfactory," said Col. Cross, speaking for the Government. "I think a third plebiscite at this stage is altogether unwise. My opinion and the opinion of the Government, is that circumstances do not call for any present change of policy."

"We believe that it is still our duty for some time at least to continue the efforts already being made to make prohibition a success. More time and more consideration will be required, in our opinion, before any change of policy can be justified. For the present, therefore, the Government has no other intention than to leave the law as it is, and to continue the policy of enforcement and of education which has been followed in the past few years."

Tokio.—Japan rejected China's proposal to abrogate the Sino-Japanese treaty of 1915, which contained the noted "twenty-one demand," and extended for 50 years the Japanese leases on Kwantung Peninsula, including Dairei and Port Arthur.

GASSED OVERSEAS

SHELL SHOCKED and RHEUMATISM

Mr. F. M. Blaquiere, Morinville, Alta., writes:—"After three years service overseas I returned to Canada almost a complete wreck. I had been gassed, and was suffering from shell shock and rheumatism, and was so nervous I could not sleep at night. I tried many medicines and doctors, but none of them did me any good for any length of time. I got so bad, in the Fall of 1919, my hands were so shaky I could scarcely hold anything, and it seemed as if I had a steel band pressing on my head. The least excitement would almost drive me into fits, and my whole system seemed to be in disorder. I had cramps in my legs nearly every night, and hot and cold chills running up and down my back nearly all the time. One day I decided to try Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills, and after I had taken six boxes I began to feel better. I kept on using them and after a while I was completely relieved."

For a Fire Engine.

Mr Beverley Bickle, of The Bickle Manufacturing Co. of Woodstock, Ont., was in town on Friday afternoon last.

A special meeting of the Town Council was called, to meet Mr Bickle, with reference to the matter of purchasing a fire engine for the town.

The Mayor, and all the Councillors were present with the exception of Mr J Miller, who is out of town.

Mr Bickle gave a brief description of the fire equipment suitable for this town, and showed "cuts" of the various types of engines. The matter was gone into pretty thoroughly by those present, with the result that another special meeting of the Council has been called for tonight in the Town Hall, when it is expected that the matter will be disposed of.

The council has not had a meeting for the month of March, owing to the inaugural meeting, which fell on a date in February so close to the regular time of meeting

No More Hand-pumpers.

Secretary Landy has received several responses in reply to his inquiries re hand-pump fire extinguishers from fire equipment supply houses. The invariable comment is that this make of machine is not now manufactured, "its place now being taken by the light truck with a gasoline pumping outfit. The old hand pumper ran in price around $900, with the newer equipment costing about double that figure.

In the Legislature.

Only seven members of the legislature last week voted against accepting the report of the special committee named to scrutinize the petition of the Alberta hotel men, this finding as returned by Chairman V W Smith Monday afternoon declaring that the committee found the petitions apparently in conformity with the requirements of the direct legislation act under which application was made for a referendum, and that the report should therefore be concurred in.

The division found 49 members in favor of accepting the committee's report, including all the members of the treasury benches, all the independent and labor members, and all the Liberals, save Mrs. McClung, who was supported in her opposition to the report by six U F A members.

In the course of the debate, Premier Greenfield said: "To me, it is a straight and clear cut question as to whether or not we should accept the committee's finding. I am personally responsible for the selection of the committee, and I purposely chose them from among the various political groups in the house. I am quite satisfied with the work of that committee, have every confidence in their sincerity and ability and am prepared to accept their report without question."

The report of the committee was concurred in by a vote of 49 to 7.

It is probable the legislators will be given an opportunity of debating the cost of a plebiscite and the advisability of granting one. A member of the government will probably move that the request of the petitioners be granted.

It must be added that, owing to a big auction sale that day, all the members of the Legislature did not happen to be present.

Several cases of dog poisoning have been reported quite close to town, and an effort is being made to get the parties who are unlawfully setting out poisoned bait to catch coyotes. The Game Act says: "No person shall at any time use or set poison for the killing of fur-bearing animals." Penalties for infractions range from $10 to $100.

The Schrumm-Miller sawing outfit has pulled out the Ashmead Ranch at Glory Hills, where the logs have been hauled to this winter, and expect to cut half-a-million feet of lumber before they finish up.

Some of the farmers who have been short of feed in this district have let their animals become pretty poor. A sample of this was seen at the sale north of town on Friday last, where six head of cattle and a "horse" sold for $50. One cow, the pet of the household apparently, brot $3 and the resident lady made such a lament over the loss, the kind hearted auctioneer gave it back free.

School Assessment Appeals

Four appeal from assessments in Warden S. D. were heard by Mr. Davidson, J. P. on Friday last. Changes were made in every appeal, in one case the assessment being reduced from $2600 to $2000.

When the appeals from Comet S.D. came up in Court in Stony Plain on Saturday, reductions in assessments amounting to some 15 per cent were allowed in about cases, with a smaller reduction in several others. The very peculiar system of assessing adopted by the assessor for Inga Municipality came to light. Taking one case, adjoining quarters, all land of practically the same value, the north one of these is assessed for $2544, and the south one for $4320, the only difference being each quarter is an different Divisions of Inga M.
